

BLACKHILL PIONEERS

The BlackHill Pioneers are a 4 piece rock/pop band from Essex UK. The group consists of singer/guitarist Tony Eke, singer/lead guitarist Simon Dawes, bassist Ben Frost and Chris McConville on drums and backing vocals. We formed early in 2016 with Chris from The Bishops joining Tony, Simon and Ben from The Trees. Our debut single Harder was released in late 2016, and received a great reception and a fair amount of airplay. We're currently busy rehearsing a host of new songs in a very hot, sweaty studio for a number live shows planned for late 2017. We're also very pleased to have had our new song Miles played on the fantastic BBC Introducing. Miles was mixed and produced by us at our own studio and recorded alongside some very big spiders and a rather large angry wasp's nest. So it was great fun. It's always hard to describe a sound from within, but we like to think of ourselves as primarily a loud rock band with a little pop on top.

Reviews

A few years ago, I came across a playlist on Spotify that included artists such as Sigur Rós, The National and The Temper Trap entitled 'Songs that build into awesomeness'. The latest release from the Blackhill Pioneers wouldn't be out of place on that playlist. Gorgeous and propulsive, 'Miles' is the second release from the Essex Four-piece. Full article
